BARBARA HEARS LOVE NOTES READ

Stoic Pair—Only slight changes in facial expression of Barbara Carroll and her father, Francis, marked the third day's cross-examination of Paul Dwyer, convicted slayer of Dr. James G. Littlefield and accuser of Carroll.

Carroll Trial Testimony Today on Pages 20 and 21

By JOHN BRADFORD MAIN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Aug. 5—"Please keep the secret about my shame."

Out of the tragedy of young love, this line from one of her letters rose up today and brought a crimson flush to the cheek of Barbara Carroll in the courtroom where her father is being tried for murder.

It was in a letter allegedly written a year ago by Barbie to Paul N. Dwyer, then her sweetheart, now a life prisoner who charges that Barbara's father committed the murders for which Paul was sentenced.

The 17-year-old daughter of former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll, seated with her mother in the sweltering courtroom, fidgeted and her face grew red as the reading of her purported letters—several of them—began.

Carroll Scowls on Letters

Dwyer, in his shirtsleeves on the witness stand and under re-direct examination, swung sharply around in his chair and gazed out a window, his back to the spectators.

And Carroll, the husky former county officer who Paul, from the witness stand, has asserted bludgeoned and garroted Dr. and Mrs. James G. Littlefield to death, scowled a deeper scowl and stirred nervously.

Barbara's purported letters to Paul, read by Special Prosecutor Ralph M. Ingalls, were addressed variously to "Buddie," "My dearest little darling," "To my own pure little Sweetheart," and "To my Sweetheart."

Following is Barbara's No. 1 letter read to the jury:

"Buddie . . . I'm sorry for what I said about your not loving me as much as I love you.

"If that is what you got so sore about please keep the (underlined) 'secret' about my shame."

"I'm sorry about this afternoon. I know you'll keep still about the . . . even if you hate me.

"I want you back but it's hard to say so because I don't know as you want to come.

"It is now after 11 o'clock and I'm so sleepy.

A 'Most-Favored' Enemy

SOVIET Russia, a country whose rulers have been plotting against the free institutions of the United States for nearly twenty years, is to receive "the most-favored nation" concessions from us in a new trade treaty about to be concluded.

The old agreement will expire today. Under the new agreement with Stalin, Russia "PROMISES" to buy at least $40,000,000 worth of goods from us in exchange for tariff concessions on her exports to us.

Whatever one may think pro or con about Secretary Hull's international trade policies, this at least should be clear to all patriotic Americans:

There should be no trade agreement made with a country whose political and economic program aims at the destruction of not only our trade but at the free institutions that have built it up.

THE recent testimony of Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party of the United States, confirmed that the Comintern of Moscow is plotting directly, through the Communist Party of America, for the establishment of a "Soviet Republic" in America.

Suppose, on the other hand, the United States was, through its rulers, plotting on Russian soil for the overthrow of the Stalinite regime.

Does any intelligent person doubt for a minute that Soviet Russia would sever all trade and diplomatic relations with America?

YET in the face of the overwhelming testimony of Earl Browder and others as to their close connection with the Comintern (Browder himself is a member of this international revolutionary committee) we are about to conclude another trade agreement with our one NATURAL enemy—Russia—and, worst of all, we are going to put her in the class of "MOST-FAVORED NATIONS!"

"Most-Favored" by whom? Certainly not by the American people.

Just what are we getting out of these "agreements" with a country that can undersell us with her forced labor and starvation wage-scales is beyond comprehension.

As the mercury topped the 90 mark for the third successive day and a clammy blanket of humidity enveloped Greater Boston, the local weatherman professed to see relief advancing from the West.

Temperatures tumbled to the 50 and 60 mark on the Rocky Mountain slope over the past 12 hours. The Boston forecaster expected that cool wave to sweep over the Atlantic seaboard before tomorrow night.

In the meantime he was helplessly watching the mercury inch its silvery way to the 91.7 mark at 1 p. m., with indications aplenty that it would exceed the 92.50 height of Wednesday.

By afternoon more than 100,000 persons had flocked to Revere Beach to escape the heat. Proportionately large crowds were at other beaches.

For the fourth consecutive day Governor Hurley ordered that all except a skeleton force be dismissed from the State House at 1 p. m. because of the heat.

Jamaica Plain Driver Loses Life

News reached the family of Irving Cohen, 49, textile merchant of Iffley road, Jamaica Plain, that he was drowned today in his submerged automobile in the Cobbosseecontee river near Gardiner, Me.

They were informed by Gardiner police that the drowning victim had been trapped after the car had left the Gardiner-Lewiston road.

Japan Bows To Red Terms

By DON BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Aug. 5 (INS)—Virtual Japanese capitulation to Moscow's "ultimatum" that peace be discussed on Soviet terms or not at all was indicated in official quarters tonight.

International News Service Photo

TORCH FOLLOWS BOMBS—Arab mob shown burning Jewish homes in Haifa, one of cities where terrorism against Jews has been particularly violent. These homes were destroyed after occupants had been driven out.

Soviet counter - proposals to Japan's peace proffer were reliably stated to be "roughly acceptable" to Japan's military and diplomatic authorities.

This was taken to mean that Japan is bowing to the Soviet demand that all Nipponese troops must be withdrawn from the disputed Siberian zone before peace negotiations can even be opened, and the Soviets' own conception of the true frontier must be regarded as the basis for talks.

At the same time Japan nevertheless, continued her diplomatic "war" with Moscow.

Amid renewed fighting in the disputed Changkufeng area of the Siberian-Manchukuoan border, Japan lodged a "stern protest" today against Soviet artillery bombardments in the battle area.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Japanese foreign office said that fighting again had broken out at strategic Changkufeng hill, focal point of the bitter frontier dispute.

According to the spokesman, the Soviets opened a new and heavy bombardment of Japanese entrenchments along Changkufeng hill at 4:30 a. m.

SOVIET GUNS ACTIVE

It was asserted the Japanese guns remained silent in view of the government's proposals for cessation of hostilities.

The Soviet bombardments continued all day, army advices said, and the Red army apparently is planning to recapture Changkufeng before a diplomatic settlement is reached.

EVACUATION URGED

Japanese Vice-Foreign Minister Kensuke Horinouchi, in making the Nipponese protest against Soviet artillery activities, asserted that bombardments of Japanese positions at Changkufeng had been continuing since early this morning, despite the Japanese proposals for cessation of the hostilities.

Missing Boat Towed to Port

A coastguard boat today towed back to Scituate a 26-foot cabin cruiser carrying a 19-year-old girl and six other passengers, who had been reported missing 12 hours before.

One of those aboard the craft was John Gallagher, 13, of Brighton, son of former City Councillor Edwin M. Gallagher.

Miss Ruth Johnson, 19, of Westville street, Dorchester, was the lone woman passenger. The others were John Breslin, 12, and James Breslin, 13, Somerville brothers; James McDonald, 50, New York City; John DiModica, 15, of Arlington, and John Sheehan, 20, of Scituate, owner of the cruiser.

Coastguard and army planes and two Boston police boats assisted in the search for the cruiser throughout the night.

Huge Tidal Wave Sweeps Le Havre

LE HAVRE, France, Aug. 5 (INS)—A huge tidal wave swept over Le Havre flooding the city during a violent storm which wrecked buildings, overturned ships and took at least three lives.

Estimates of the damage to the city exceeded $1,000,000. The storm which accompanied the tidal wave was called the fiercest in the memory of the oldest inhabitants.

4 More Killed In Holy Land

JERUSALEM, Aug. 5 (AP)—Four persons were killed and seven wounded seriously today in a further outburst of Holy Land violence.

Deaths from a land mine explosion yesterday near Kfar Saba rose to nine.

15 Die in Italian Warship Blast

ROME, Aug. 5 (AP)—Fifteen Italian sailors were killed and 20 injured in a boiler explosion Monday aboard the Italian cruiser Quarto in the port of Pollenza, Island of Majorca, it was announced today.

Girl Eloper's Hubby Jailed

MARY RIDGE

Jail bars and a stern father's alleged refusal to forgive today temporarily separated a 16 - year - old South Boston bride and the sweetheart she said she secretly married in New Hampshire Wednesday.

The bridegroom, George O'Brien, 27, of Silver street, South Boston, was held in South Boston Court on a charge of abduction.

Unable to furnish $1000 bail, he was committed to Charles street jail.

The girl, brown-haired, blue-eyed Mary Ridge, 16, of West Fourth street, South Boston, was held as a stubborn child and was turned over to her mother, Mrs. Arthur Ridge.

In a tearful conference, the mother sobbed:

"If Mary and this boy really love each other and will get married in a church, I'll forgive them and give them my blessing."

Mrs. Ridge told the probation officer, however, that she didn't dare to take her daughter home.

"Mary's father is too angry to see her now," the mother said. "I don't know what he'd do."

So with Mrs. Ridge's approval, Probation Officer Patrick J. Hurley placed the 16-year-old bride in the care of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Before she was taken from the courtroom, the bride said goodby to O'Brien through the bars of the detention cage, in which he was confined.

"Don't worry, kid," he said. "We'll have a chance to tell our whole story when the case comes up again next week. I'm sticking with you and everything will be all right."

And Mary said:

"Whatever happens, George, I'll wai for you."

Later she told questioners:

"George and I were in love for a year and a half before we decided to run away and get married."

DEATH DRIVER BRIDEGROOM FREE

Everett McNeil and Bride

Everett McNeil, East Boston bridegroom of three weeks, was exonerated today of manslaughter in the death of a six-year-old boy.

The child was killed by an automobile allegedly operated by McNeil just before the scheduled hour of the latter's wedding, July 16.

In East Boston court with McNeil today, as he was cleared of the manslaughter charge, was the girl he married three hours after the fatal accident.

She is the former Barbara McCullock of Rollins street, South End.

McNeil was found guilty of operating to endanger and operating without a license.

He was fined $100 on the first count, $10 on the second. He appealed and was held in $1000 bail, which he furnished.

He was found not guilty of leaving the scene of an accident without making himself known.

Polygamist Given Year

LAWRENCE, Aug. 5 (AP)—Convicted of polygamy and a morals charge involving a former Montreal bank clerk, Colin J. Brady, 30, of Philadelphia, today was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction. He appealed and was held in $1000 for Superior Court.

The bank clerk, Catherine O'Brien, 28, whom he admitted he married in Jacksonville, Fla., last April, was found blameless.

Kill Pittsburgh Runaway Bear

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5 (AP)—A ferocious grizzly bear that broke from a steel-barred cage in the Highland Park zoo and spread terror through the adjoining residential district, was shot and killed near a reservoir in the park five hours after her escape today.

Arnold Schaumann, zoo superintendent, shot the bear twice as she emerged from a pedestrian him, snarling and pawing.

The animal, struck in the shoulder, dropped eight feet from Schaumann, rolled down an embankment, reared up and attempted to run back into the tunnel.

Schaumann fired two more shots, and Bruin toppled over. Sergt. Ralph Barton of the homicide squad dashed up with a submachine gun and fired a stream of bullets into the quivering body. Other police came up and riddled the carcass with bullets.

Grandad in Hero's Role: Two Other Girls Saved

Pretty Roberta Cooney, 16, of Terne road, Quincy, today owed her life to her grandfather, Charles Osborn, who rowed a mile to help pull her from the waters of Quincy Bay after her small sailboat upset.

Saved with her were two Quincy friends, Bernardine Travers, 18, of Terne road, and Rosemary Wenzler, 18, of Curlew road.

Conleth O'Connell, 14, son of former Congressman James F. O'Connell of Brighton, and Raymond Blue, 12, both summer visitors at Hull Hill, were rescued by Point Allerton coast guards after their "winabout" sailboat capsized in Hull Bay.

Power Escapes Camera Blast

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (INS)—Tyrone Power, Hollywood film star, narrowly escaped injury early today when an amateur photographer's flash-light bulb exploded, spattering glass in his face.

The actor had just arrived at Ben Marden's Riviera, well-known night club on the New Jersey Palisades, when an amateur cameraman stepped up to the film star and touched off his flash bulb.

Instead of properly igniting, the bulb burst, spattering the glass into Power's face. A doctor at the Riviera was summoned and Power's face was examined. Save for slight scratches, he was unhurt.

Helen Hayes To Adopt Boy

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (INS)—Actress Helen Hayes and Writer Charles MacArthur are about to become the parents of a blue-eyed baby boy.

MacArthur revealed today a year-old baby is being adopted because they always have wanted a boy, and at the special request of their 10-year-old daughter, Mary.

"We haven't made the final arrangements for his adoption," MacArthur said, "but as soon as Helen gets back from down South we'll probably get him."

Miss Hayes will join her husband at their Nyack home next week.

Shirley Gets Look At Windy City

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (AP)—With an armful of dolls and a big smile, Shirley Temple went on a "rubber-neck" trip around Chicago today while waiting for the train that will take her back to Hollywood after a two-months' vacation.

"And did I have a grand time—o—oh!" said the nine-year-old movie star between smiles for crowds around her at the railroad station when she arrived this morning.

'Walking Weavers' Halted Again by Bearing Trouble

WAYLAND, Aug. 5—Bearing trouble in the wheels of their baby carriage—which is bearing quite a load itself—halted the "Walking Weavers" here today after they had started on the last lap of their 466-mile trek from Baltimore to Boston.

The carriage is loaded down with 250 pounds of luggage for the 10 members of the group—father, mother and eight youngsters.

The father, John J. Weaver, who is concerned mainly with spiritual problems, showed he had an excellent grasp of worldly affairs by making new bearings out of a tin can.

As he squatted by the side of the road, his little brood gathered nearby, several score autoists and pedestrians gathered about.

He is accustomed to such curiosity by now, however, and carried on an amiable conversation as he worked. The dialogue went like this:

Autoist—"Mighty hot work."

Mr. Weaver—"Yes, mighty hot."

Autoist—"Hot day."

Mr. W.—"Yes, mighty hot."

Autoist — "The heat getting you?"

Mr. W.—"Well, it's mighty hot."

The family slept in the First Parish Church here last night and were sent off today by the pastor, Rev. Payson Miller, who had opened the building to give them a place to sleep.

They expect to reach Weston tonight, where they will spend the week-end to avoid heat and traffic and to hold a gospel meeting.

3 Withdraw In State Race; Deadline Near

Two Democratic candidates for secretary of state and another contestant for Congress, withdrew today as the deadline for withdrawals approached.

Dr. Joseph Santosuosso, several times the party nominee for that office, and James J. Buckley of Medford withdrew from the secretary's contest.

William F. O'Brien of Dorchester, who filed his candidacy for the 12th Congressional seat now held by John W. McCormack, was first to appear for withdrawal at the office of William N. Hardy, director of the election division.

The Santosuosso and Buckley withdrawals still left eight in the Democratic race for secretary of state; Mrs. Katherine Foley of Lawrence, John M. Bresnahan of Lynn, John H. Wallace of Boston, Henry Clay of Springfield, Frank Pratti, Jr., of Somerville, William J. Ahearne of Lynn, William F. Sullivan of Boston and Charles Marsolino of Boston.

Other withdrawals in this field were expected before the 5 o'clock deadline tonight.

O'Brien's withdrawal left Congressman McCormack unopposed for his party's nomination. McCormack faces a contest by Henry J. Allen and John T. Hawes at the election, however.

Green Sees Labor Party Sure in U. S.

The labor movement in the United States is gradually leading towards the formation of its own new political party.

That was the message brought to New England by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who arrived here today en route to Worcester to address the convention of the Massachusetts branch of his organization.

"Our economic and social structures are undergoing a significant change," declared President Green, "and when labor has reached the point where it will have become effective in both fields it will undoubtedly set up its own political party.

SEES CIO FAILING

"England waited many years before its labor party was launched. We can well afford to wait also for the proper time to raise our political standard."

On the other hand, the national labor head professed to see utter disintegration of the Committee for Industrial Organization, led by John L. Lewis.

He said the downfall of the CIO would result from its Communistic leanings and to internal dissension within its ranks.

The national labor spokesman cited the defeat of candidates endorsed by the committee in Detroit and Akron, O., as evidences of its decline.

CANDIDATES DEFEATED

"The Communistic tie-up has served to defeat the CIO," said Green, "and its endorsement now invariably spells defeat for the candidate who has been unfortunate enough to accept it.

"Like all secession movements the Committee for Industrial Organization is bound to wither and die."

Referring to the Roosevelt four billion spend-lend program, the labor chief said it was "helpful" but would not remove the cause of unemployment.

"Revival of business is the real remedy for our labor depression," he asserted, "and that will not come until a new spirit and outlook possesses business so that it will risk the venture of investment."

Merriam Flays CIO Policies

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5 (AP)—Governor Frank F. Merriam, whose administration has seen some of California's bitterest strikes, today accused the CIO of retarding industrial growth of the state and nation.

"I have great respect for responsible California labor groups," said the Republican Governor, "and I favor their principle of collective bargaining, but there is a certain portion of the labor movement in California and throughout the United States for which I have no sympathy.

"I am not afraid to say it. I refer to the CIO.

Labor Delegates Greeted by Green

By JOHN W. ENGLISH
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

WORCESTER, Aug. 5—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today addressed the 53rd annual convention of its Massachusetts branch on the theme, "The Future of Our Great Movement."

His appearance on the convention platform was one of the highlights of the week-long session, which is scheduled to wind up this afternoon with election of officers.

While the fight between Nicholas J. Morrissey of Teamsters Local 15 of Boston and Anthony J. DeAndrade of Boston Printing Pressmen's Union, Boston, for the presidency is a spirited one it was generally believed that the former would win handily.

IRWIN FAVORED

The only other fight is for the vice-presidencies in the third district where four men are battling for two positions.

Those who aspire for the honors are Charles M. Irwin, secretary of Lowell Central Labor Union, who seeks re-election; Timothy O'Neill, president of Lawrence Central Labor Union; Walter W. Cenerazzo, business agent of Gloucester Sea Food Workers Union, and John A. Gillis, secretary of Haverhill Central Labor Union. It was generally conceded that Irwin would be re-elected.

Dollar Tip To Red Cap By Green

The attitude of labor towards "tips" for workers was exemplified in a practical way today at the South Station by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

For toting four heavy bags from his Pullman to an automobile in Summer street the labor leader gave the station porter a dollar bill.

Crump's Man Tops in Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 5 (AP)—The Democratic faction headed by National Committeeman E. H. Crump and Senior United States a smashing victory over Governor Senator Kenneth D. McKellar won Gordon Browning and Junior Senator George L. Berry in Thursday's statewide primary, incomplete returns show today.

Prentice Cooper, 43-year-old Shelbyville attorney and former state commander of the American Legion, was nominated for governor over Browning, who two years ago received the greatest majority ever given a gubernatorial candidate in this state. In the 1936 primary the governor had Crump's support.

With only a few precincts missing the vote was for governor, Cooper 203,537; Browning 142,781. For senator, Stewart 148,401; Berry 87,276; Rep. J. Ridley Mitchell 62,355.

'Sweeps' Sweep By Hub Agents

More than $2,000,000 worth of Irish sweepstakes tickets, secreted in the hold of an American freighter, escaped the watchful eyes of Boston customs agents it was revealed today with seizure of 46,000 books of tickets at Philadelphia.

The seizure, one of the largest ever made in the United States, was accomplished by aides of Chief Customs Inspector Joseph J. Flynn of Philadelphia on the arrival there of the freighter S. S. Capulin.

The Capulin, which carried a cargo of ore for Port Richmond, first touched at Boston several days ago after a voyage from Belfast, Ireland.

The tickets were wrapped in 10 large bales sandwiched between large rolls of burlap on the water bottom of the ship.

Both the captain and the ship's crew denied knowledge of the tickets but were held for questioning.

Italy Explains Bars Raised Against Jews

ROME, Aug. 5 (AP)—The Italian government announced today it had "no special prosecution plan against Jews."

It epressed determination, however, to limit participation by Jews in "the full life of the state" to the same proportion that Jews form in Italy's population—about onei n a thousand.

The announcement was made in a bulletin issued by the official agency, Informazione Diplomatica, which replied te foreign criticism of the Fascist racedoctrine enunciated last month.

The bulletin declared the doctrine was not new, but was stated by Premier Mussolini as early as 1919 and was designed to prevent creation of a hybrid race in Italy.

The bulletin disclosed a special census yill be taken shortly to determine the number of Jews in Italy.

..."We will send into Libya and East Africa—with the passing of time and for the absolute necessity of life—millions of men," Informazione Diplomatica said.

Hub Orchestra Lures 6000 to Berkshires

STOCKBRIDGE, Aug. 5—Berkshire Hills resounded today with triumphal music of Beethoven and Bach as the Boston Symphony Orchestra entered the second day of its two-week festival at Tanglewood estate.

More than 6000 persons from all parts of the U. S. crowded the new streamlined music auditorium for the dedicatory concert, presented by the orchestra and Cecilia Society of Boston under Dr. Serge Koussevitsky.

Critics declared the fan-shaped hall, which opens on the beautiful estate where Nathaniel Hawthorne once lived and wrote, ranked among the best concert auditoriums, for acoustics and setting, in the world.

Gertrude Robinson Smith, president of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival, paid tribute to the late Henry Hadley in her dedicatory address because it was his ambition to make the Berkshires "an ideal spot for symphonic music, under the moon an' stars."

Possibility that the festival may lead to the establishment of an academy of music was mentioned by Bentley W. Warren. Dr. Koussevitzky also gave a dedicatory speech.

One of the climaxes of the concert, which ended with Beethoven's ninth symphony, was the singing of Bach's "Ein Feste Burg" by the audience.

Errol Flynn On Reno Trip

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5 (AP)—Screen Actor Errol Flynn, like Aviator Douglas Corrigan, apparently got his directions mixed, but his friends declared today there was no mistake in his arriving in Nevada, a state where people quickly settle their marital differences.

Flynn left Hollywood, saying he was chartering a boat to sail down the Mexican coast to determine what had become of his yacht. Some hours later, he turned up in Reno, and then at a Lake Tahoe resort.

What his friends wondered was whether his Nevada junket was for business or pleasure.

His wife, French-born Lili Damita, was quite sure it was the latter.

SCHOOL FOR ORLEANS

ORLEANS, Aug. 5—An appropriation of $150,000 for the erection of a new high school has been voted by the selectmen here. The town has been authorized to borrow $90,000, and the balance will be by a WPA grant.

Tobin Gets 3-Point Plan To Ease City Relief Costs

three recommendations for easing Boston's burden were submitted by the Municipal Research Bureau.

They included long-range financial plans for welfare which would end the present "costly procedure" of borrowing money to meet expenses, organized efforts to "refit" welfare recipients for jobs, and minimum use of federal WPA agencies for employable cases on the city relief rolls.

The bureau backed up its three-fold suggestion with figures purporting to show that Boston now leads 11 other large American cities in per capital relief costs.

Tobin Makes Final Plans For Corrigan Fete Here

Watch for the Irish-green discs Monday!

Every wearer of a disc will be a Corrigan.

And all the Corrigans—together with most of the rest of Boston—will be out to welcome to the city Douglas "Non-Stop" Corrigan.

Not yet determined is the exact hour at which the little Texas flier will arrive at Boston airport.

But Mayor Tobin announced final plans for the Doug Corrigan auto parade and public exercises.

"All any Corrigan will have to do," Mayor Tobin said, "will be come to City Hall, identify himself or herself, and get a big, green disc to wear.

"That disc will pass Corrigans through police lines and entitle them to a place on the City Hall reviewing stand."

The mayor has arranged to have two police officers, named Corrigan, act as "Non-Stop" Corrigan's bodyguard and escort of honor.

GIVES PARADE ROUTE

They are Patrolman John J. Corrigan of the Dorchester station, who is giving up a day of his vacation to accept the detail, and Patrolman Joseph R. Corrigan of Jamaica Plain station.

From East Boston airport, the Mayor said, the Corrigan auto parade will pass through East Boston, Chelsea, Charlestown and Boston to the Common, with stops at Chelsea square, Monument square, City square, City Hall and the State House.

Exercises on the Common will follow.

University Unit Ground Broken

Ground was broken today by Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, for the new home for the university College of Business Administration in Commonwealth avenue, near Cottage Farm bridge.

J. Willard Hayden, president of the Charles Hayden Foundation, which provided $476,000 towards the cost of the new structure, participated in the ceremony.

Also present were Dean Everett W. Lord of the college, E. Ray Speare, university treasurer; George A. Dunn, Alumni Association secretary, and former Governor Frank G. Allen, chairman of the university board of trustees.

The new university unit is expected to be finished next June and will house all 16 departments of the college.

Lindy Corrigan's Idol

Spurred Non-Stop on His Epic Flight

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—The Corrigan, as cocky a bantam as ever was, opened his eyes in a big, cafe hotel bed this morning, and looked out upon a Broadway which has become for the time a street of dreams. And he—this Douglas Corrigan—said to me:

"You can put it this way, if you will. The thing that I did sprang straight from my adoration (nothing less) of the greatest flying man the world has yet produced—Lindbergh."

And that [illegible] with [illegible] set himself down on Baldonnel field Dublin, 28 hours and some minutes later.

A word about Corrigan himself—the quality of the lad which shines from his twinkling eyes of brown and shows even in the deep dimple which quirks his Irish mouth every time you bring up the matter of that treacherous, that deceitful compass.

For quality he has the good fine stuff, 18-carat pure. To begin with, the Corrigan New Yorkers will gaze upon in the middle of this day as he passed up Broadway in his glory, is better looking, far more attractive, than the camera makes him out to be.

For the camera, somehow misses that essential quality which only a painter could catch, something of the heart and something of the mind.

WEIGHS 121 POUNDS

Broth of a boy though he is, his weight runs to only 121 pounds, and he's no more than five feet five in his brogues.

A young man oddly sure of himself for all of his modest demeanor and pleasant, respectful speech. He's even small and shrewd and very curious, miss nothing going on anywhere near him. His reflexes are quicker than a cat's. His forehead is high and good.

His nose is curved a bit and full at the [illegible]. His mouth seldom [illegible] is an Irish mouth if you ever saw one. His voice is high, without resonance, and carries just a suggestion of the brogue.

Early today he went for a brief walk to refresh a bit before they set him upon an automobile back seat, rolled him up the lower Broadway canyon and presented him to Mayor LaGuardia.

The thoughts of this supremely modest, self-effacing young man ran in this strain: By what blessed [illegible] by what thundering good fortune was a young fellow, [illegible] so [illegible] elevated to the [illegible] of fame and set on the front [illegible] a feature of a [illegible] paper making.

SEEKS AVIATION NICHE

And in this respect he is determined to follow in the footsteps of Lindbergh, his idol to let the cheap and easy money pass by and wait up on the bigger and more permanent rewards.

"Aviation," the Corrigan told me, "is my life. I'm not interested in just grabbing money because of this lucky break. I want to be somebody in aviation—to hold a big place."

If you had been down the bay last evening when the Corrigan came romping in upon the inner Manhattan, standing all gay and proud by Captain Randall, you would not have wondered at the trend of the Corrigan's reflections this day when the crowd gets up that unforgettable roar of acclaim, and the torn paper descends in a snowstorm upon his rusty head.

First Pictures of Corrigan In U. S.

Exclusive pictures of Douglas Corrigan, taken aboard the SS Manhattan as the intrepid young flier returned to America from his transAtlantic hop, are today presented first to readers of the Boston Evening American.

Behind this picture "scoop" is a thrilling drama of modern newspaper making.

The photographs, a series of candid camera miniatures, were taken by an International News photographer, accompanying Corrigan on his triumphant return voyage.

Packed in a water-tight box, the films were tossed overboard just off Nantucket lightship. George Woodruff, New England manager of International News photos, was waiting in a 47-foot motor launch skippered by Captain Fagin of the New York Yacht Club, Newport, R. I.

The sea "date" had been arranged by wireless.

Woodruff picked up the floating box, and the launch raced through a blinding fog, taking grave risks. Reaching Nantucket Island airport, a chartered plane was waiting.

The films were placed aboard [illegible] Woodruff took off. Exactly [illegible] minutes later the negatives were in the office of the Boston Evening American.

Millions Mob Doug In New York Parade

[illegible]

RUSH POLICE LINES

Even before the [illegible] police lines [illegible] and keeping [illegible] to get near the [illegible] and cheer [illegible] with the people in them.

And down at the Battery [illegible]. They had been patiently there for hours. Good humored police [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] female, demonstrators. It was [illegible] even before the motorcade [illegible] ahead and the [illegible] Corrigan was due, [illegible].

A few short weeks ago an [illegible] and an aviation hero [illegible] parades, ticker tape, [illegible] windows lining the sidewalks cheering themselves hoarse and there were some who cried openly, cried for the pure joy of it.

'SNOW' BEGINS FALLING

It isn't really a "parade" but two cars. Douglas up there in the front one sitting up high on the folded down top—but all the armies in the world could get out here and parade and not draw half the crowd.

Now we're out of the clear and right in the old canyon and the "snow" is falling by the ton. Startled pigeons circle wildly, [illegible] probably even flying in the wrong direction. The air is so [illegible] this unforgettable roar of acclaim, and the torn paper descends in a snowstorm upon his rusty head.

Lafs

Babs' 'Shame Letters' Read to Carroll Jury

(Sleepy underlined). I hope you'll come back, darling. I need and want you."

BABS."

HER BURNING LOVE.

The second of Barbara's notes to the jury follows:

"My Dearest Little Darling:

"You know that I shall always love you no matter where you are, what you are doing or——, I love you darling, remember that. I gave you everything I could, darling, because I love you (except my virginity). If you think you'd ought to be forgiven, I mean if you think you've done something that you want my forgiveness for I forgive you darling with all my heart, soul and body.

"You'll probably meet all kinds of people and be tempted to do all kinds of things but if you love me as much as you show to me that you do you won't drink nor make any one. This last thing won't happen anyway but I had to say it.

"I'll be waiting for you with open arms, heart and soul. But die. I hope you'll receive me the same.

"I love you.

"Your own Babs."

"I'LL LOVE YOU ALWAYS"

Barbara's third letter read by Chapman follows:

"To My Own Pure Little Sweetheart:

"That was the sweetest, dearest and loveliest little letter that I ever received. It was wonderful! I'll always, always (both of these words underlined) keep it. It's terrible separating us like this, but I guess I won't say anything about it.

Dad hasn't said anything yet, and neither has Mother. I pity Dad when he has say something, because I'm going to remind him of a few things.

"I never cared as much as I have tonight in all my life.

"I love you. I love you both underlined) so much, Buddie. Why can't I have you? I can sometime, can't I?

"I'm glad, darling, that you're going to keep yourself the way you are. I will try my hardest to be god enough and ideal for you to follow.

"I'm glad you love me. I love you with every single part of my body. You're wonderful and pure and lovely, darling, to me. Always stay that way. I'll stay as I am for you. (You underlined.)

"Good-bye, darling, for the present at least.

"The only (only underlined) one that will always love you.

"No matter what happens

"Yours —— Barbs

"Mine from yours

YOU DESERVE BETTER"

[illegible]

"Well darling I'll tell you now. The thing that bothers me now is that I don't think that you're going to stay with me when I'm not really what you want. You should have a girl that hasn't been touched and although I know you love me and I'm positive that I love you, you really deserve something better than I can give you.

"That is the reason why I feel so rotten, in a smaller group of words it's that I can't give you everything you deserve.

"Always yours until something changes your opinion.

"I REGRET TELLING"

[illegible]

"The ball is tomorrow evening. I'll be out of campfire at half-past four or quarter of five. Yes, you may see me. Yes I liked the show. I am sorry you didn't like it very well.

"I think that I regret my telling you what I did yesterday. Not that I wasn't glad to get it off my chest but it's a bother and you know it's hell for me to be around where you can see me and know what you know now.

"That's one reason why it hurts when you say that you're not decent enough to go with me because it's me that's not decent. Don't say it isn't, because I know differently.

Good-bye, darling."

Carroll Jury Hears of Love

[illegible] with the two bodies in the [illegible] to send him back to Maine that Maine authorities not be brought on.

"I told them I was afraid he (Carroll) would throw me out of the plane," said Paul.

Tweed's cross examination at the hands of Defense Counsel Oliver Chapman went on for three days.

Forced to confess that he gleefully robbed the bodies of Dr. Littlefield and of Mrs. Littlefield after they had been murdered, the 19-year-old lifer continued the grisly story by which he hopes to fasten guilt on former Deputy Sheriff Carroll.

UNRUFFLED BY [illegible]

Nothing seemed to shake his nerves [illegible] his patience—not even [illegible] that made the court room gasp [illegible] his voice continued low pitched, at times almost disinterested.

The two bloodstained coats which he admitted were his but which he insisted Carroll used to choke the life out of first the doctor and then the doctor's wife—he looked at them without emotion.

His own striped sports coat—the regimental uniform of a carefree youth who liked to beau the girls around—he stroked his hand across the belted back, almost affectionately.

A gun found in his possession when he was arrested in New Jersey with the bodies of the two murder victims in the car—calmly he admitted "borrowing" it from a friend without the friend's knowledge or consent.

Dwyer's New Story

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Aug. 5—Following is today's testimony in the trial of former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll, charged with the slaying of Dr. James G. Littlefield, for which Paul N. Dwyer, 19, is serving a life sentence.

Cross-examination of Dwyer by Defense Counsel Cyrus Chapman

Q—Mr. Dwyer, on October 13 you say your bag was all packed? A—Yes, sir. I was planning to go away to school.

DRESSED IN BLACK

Q—When last had you gone over to Hebron? A—I believe it was that Wednesday afternoon.

Q—Were you planning to stay at Hebron near your mother or was it just a casual visit? A—It all depended on where I went to school whether it was Lewiston or somewhere else.

Q—When you went to get Mrs. Littlefield how was she dressed? —A black coat, a black dress.

Q—She continued to wear that coat and hat and had it on at the time of her death? A—Yes, si

WHEN MOTHER SCOLDED

Q—After Mrs. Littlefield's body was taken from the front seat into the back seat, did you notice any blood on the front seat where she had been sitting? A—No, sir.

Q—Was there a robe or anything of that sort on the front seat? A—No, sir.

Q—Just the upholstery? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Had your mother scolded you just prior to October 13, Mr. Dwyer? A—No, sir. It was some time previous to that.

Q—What was it about? A—I had a bad habit of running up bills.

Q—Had you been informed Mr Dwyer, of a little pile of ashes found in your home? A—No, I had not been informed of that until of late.

BLOOD IN CELLAR

Q—Had you been informed of bloodstains in the cellar? A—No.

Q—Had you been informed of the fact that bloody footprints and bloody fingerprints, both of yourself and of the doctor, were found. A—No sir, no one has told me that.

Q—You testified you took the bloodstained bathroom rug and hid it in the attic. Why did you do that, Mr. Dwyer? A—I didn't want my mother to come home and find it

Q—There was quite a pool of blood on the bathroom floor, wasn't there? A—Yes.

"Why didn't you wipe that and the bloody footprints up, Mr. Dwyer? A—I think I did

Q—Are you willing to testify that you did? A—No. I can't remember everything I did that night. I think I did.

THE DOCTOR'S BLOOD

Q—After you had wrapped the doctor's body in the blanket and carried it out to the car, would you say you opened the blanket up and that blood from the blanket ran down onto the ground? A—Yes.

Q—In coming down the stairs would you say that the doctor's head was next to the blanket where the big bloody spot on it appears. Q—Yes, I think it was.

"I CANNOT EXPLAIN"

Q—Was there any belt or rope around the blanket? A—No sir

Q—Will you explain to the jury, Mr. Dwyer, how the body was brought down the stairs feet first without the blood running from the blanket? A—I cannot

Q—As a matter of fact, Mr Dwyer, wasn't something tied around that blanket by you to prevent the doctor's blood from running out as you took him down the stairs? A—No, sir.

Q—Why did you go to Hebron Wednesday afternoon? A—To see my mother

Q—Weren't you going anyway the next day? A—I don't know.

Q—You had your things all packed and you didn't know when next you were going to see your mother? A—No

Q—Now, Mr. Dwyer, when you were first apprehended you assumed full responsibility for the murder of both Dr and Mrs Littlefield? A—Not at first I didn't No, sir.

Q—You at first denied you killed her? A—Yes, sir

Q—And then you admitted it? A—Yes, sir

Q—And you continued to admit it After coming back here to Maine? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Now, Mr. Dwyer, didn't the authorities question you and impress upon you that your physical condition was such that you couldn't have committed the murder as you said you did? A—I don't remember.

MR. CARROLL'S IDEA"

Q—Now, Mr. Dwyer, didn't you conceive the idea of your story of a dope ring? A—No, sir

Q—Who did? A—Mr. Carroll.

Q—At your trial, Mr. Dwyer, it was your purpose to defend yourself by laying the murder on Mr Carroll? A—No, sir, I don't believe I was. I don't— I didn't know what my defense was going to be.

Q—Your trial proceeded on your plea of not guilty for two days, did it not? A—I believe so.

Q—And during that time you did not know what your defense was going to be? A—No

Q—What did you do when you went to Dr. Littlefield's home frist, Mr. Dwyer? A—sat down in his office for about 15 minutes

Q—What did you say later to Mrs. Littlefield about the doctor having run over two men? A—I told her we had run over two men the doctor wanted her to help

DISOWNS MANS COAT

Q—Did she have it on at the time she was still, as you say, in Mr Carroll? A—Yes, sir

Q—Is that the coat she had on at the time that she was killed? A—Yes, sir.

Q—She was wearing that when she was killed? A—Yes sir

Q—Do you know whose it is

Q—Or was? A—No, I don't know, I do

Q—You're sure it isn't yours? A—No sir it's not mine

Your Honor I understood it was either Dr Littlefields or Mr Dwyers But Mr Dwyer says I was not his

Q—Is that one of the rugs which you had in the attic? A—I can't say as to that. I left one of the rugs in the bathroom

Q—And that might have been this one? A—Yes.

THE RUG HE HID

Q—Was it on the floor where Dr. Littlefield was being killed? A—Yes, sir

Q—Is that one of the rugs that you had up in the attic? A—I think that one is

Q—Do you recognize it? A—No sir I can't say that I do

Q—Have you see it before today? A—No, sir

"Stipulated that this exhibit was found in the rear of Dr. Littlefield's car"

Next was another bath room rug.

HER DEATH DRESS

Q—One of the rugs you had up in the attic? A—I believe so.

Next was Dwyer's own vest.

Q—Did you have it on while Dr. Littlefield was being killed? A—No.

Q—When did you put it on? A—Later, when I changed my clothes.

Next was Mrs. Littlefield's dress.

Q—The one she was wearing at the time that she was killed? A—I can't say as to that.

This dress was entered in evidence [illegible] by stipulation.

Q—I show respondent's exhibit "F" and ask you if you know what it is? A—I believe it a pair of men's underdrawers—no.

RECOGNIZES LUNCHEON

Q—No? A—Yes, a pair of men's underdrawers.

Q—Ever see them before? A—No.

[illegible] of Dr. Littlefield.

Next a hand-[illegible]-towel "from Dr. Dr. in a shoe. Dwyer said he could not identify them but they were entered by stipulation.

Next were two pairs of men's handkerchiefs.

Q—Ever see them before? A (after long pause)—I think I have, but I can't remember where.

Q—Didn't you have them in your bag? A—I can't say.

Q—Did you have any beef bouillon in your bag? A—Yes, I think I did.

Next introduced was Dr. Littlefield's necktie.

Then came Mrs. Littlefield's scarf.

Q—The one she had on when she was killed? A—I don't know that she had a scarf on when she was killed.

TOLD ABOUT BODY

Q—Who is the first person you ever told that you took Mrs. Littlefield's body from the front seat and placed it in the rear seat of the car? A—I don't know that.

Q—When did you first tell it? A—I don't know that, either.

Q—To whom have you told it? A—Mr. Ingalls, Mr. Price, Sheriff Francis, other officers.

Q—Was Mr. Price the first one to whom you told it? A—I don't know.

Q—When did you tell Mr. Ingalls about it? A—I don't know that, either.

Re-Direct Quiz Of Young Dwyer

Cross-examination concluded at [illegible] point and Special Prosecutor [illegible] took up re-direct examination [illegible] Dwyer.

Q—When Barbara told you that her father had had relations with her, did you, the next day, receive a letter from her? A—Yes, sir.

Q—When you were apprehended in New Jersey was that letter found in your car? A—I believe so.

Q—Is Barbara's hand-writing? A—Yes, sir.

Q—When the officers arrested you, you were asleep, or nearly asleep, in the car? A—Yes, sir.

FEARED CARROLL

Q—And they aroused you? A—Yes, sir.

Q—You came back to Maine by airplane? A—Yes, sir.

Q—When did you first know you were coming back by airplane? A—I don't just know.

Q—Did you make a statement mentioning Carroll? What did you say? A—I think I asked them I hoped they didn't send him down for me.

Q—Did you say why? A—Yes, I think I told them I was afraid he would throw me out of the plane.

Q—I show you your coat; was Mrs. Littlefield's head on the back of that coat? Was blood coming from her nose and ears on it? A—Yes, sir, I believe it was.

WRAPS UP WRENCH

Dwyer again was asked to wrap the head of the wrench in a handkerchief on the manner in which he has previously testified he wrapped it when he was carrying it after losing his grip.

Dwyer was asked to [illegible] a [illegible] copy of the [illegible] sheet of Carroll bearing his and Mrs. Littlefield's signatures and [illegible] assumed names he as Dr. P[illegible] knew the latter by her maiden name of [illegible].

He said he could identify his own [illegible] but not that of Mrs. Littlefield.

"MISS CARROLL'S" LETTER

Barbara's letter was introduced handled to Dwyer.

Q—Do you recognize the hand-writing? A—Yes.

Q—Whose is it? A—Miss Carroll's.

Q—Barbara's? A—Yes.

Q—Read it.

Defense objection.

Q—Not aloud, to yourself.

Q—When did you receive that letter, with relation to the time Barbara told you of her father? A—Soon afterwards.

DEFENSE ASKS IT ALL

Q—Do you know where the rest of that letter is? A—I don't unless it was with the rest of the letters I gave to Mr. Carroll that night.

Letter offered in evidence.

Defense objection.

"Unless the rest of this letter which in its present state contains a broken sentence, is produced, I object to its admission," Atty. Chapman said.

Another letter is introduced.

Q—Whose is it? A—Miss Carroll's.

Q—When did you receive this letter? A—That was shortly afterward also.

Q—Is this the complete letter you put in the envelope? A—Yes, sir.

HER "SHAME LETTER"

The court admitted the first letter.

The letter reads in part:

"I think I'll regret my telling you what I did yesterday because if it's bothering you and it's hell for me to be around and know that you know what you do. That's why it hurts and hurts when you say you're not decent enough to be going with me. It's me that's not decent."

A third letter from Barbara was introduced.

Q—This is in Barbara's hand-writing? A—Yes, it is.

Objections by the defense.

Another letter reads in part as follows:

"Well darling, I'll tell you now. "The thing that bothers me now is I don't think you need me.

"You should have a girl that hasn't been touched, and although I know you love me and I will always love you . . . I can't give you everything that you deserve."

TOLD ABOUT CARROLL

Q—Did Dr. Littlefield say anything to you about Carroll? A—He questioned me. He asked me how long ago it had happened. I told him it was back two or three years. He told me he wasn't surprised because he knew of something similar that had happened between Mr. Carroll and another man's daughter here in town.

Q—Did Dr. Littlefield say that to you in Carroll's presence? A—Yes.

Q—Where was this? A—In my hallway.

Q—You say you locked the bathroom door and hid the key? Where did you hide the key? A—In my mother's bureau drawer in her bedroom.

Q—Did you tell anyone where you hid the key? A—Yes, the officers in New Jersey.

Q—After you came back from New Jersey you signed a statement, did you not? A—I did.

Q—Was Francis Carroll there at the time? A—Yes.

WANTED BARBARA OUT

Q—Where did the robbery idea come from? A—I believe Sheriff Burnell at Portland first asked me if I did it for money.

Q—Did you see these witnesses whose names are signed here? A—No, I don't believe I did.

Q—Down in New Jersey did you ask that Barbara's name be stricken out of the statement you made there? A—I believe I did. I asked Mr. Breslin, the county prosecutor, to strike it out. I hadn't meant to mention it.

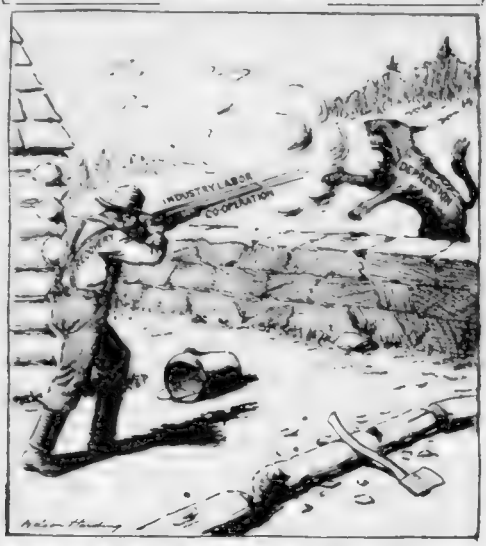
BOSTON FRIDAY AUGUST 5, 1938

Give It Both Barrels!



The Editor Says: The immediate business of the nation is to make life happier for everybody—to promote the recovery movement in every possible manner.

The American Federation of Labor attests its interest in this endeavor in its latest report on employment conditions. The report tells us:

"CONFIDENCE IS REVIVING. PRODUCTIONS AND PRICES ARE TURNING UPWARD AND FIRMS WHICH HAD CONTEMPLATED WAGE CUTS WILL BE MORE ABLE TO TIDE OVER THE PRESENT DIFFICULT PERIOD WITHOUT REDUCING WAGES."

Thus and wisely the Federation faces the fact that the real interests of industry and labor are identical that they stand or fall together that prosperity for one is bound to be prosperity for the other.

So we have MORE of this co-operation. It is the way to end the depression. It is the ONLY WAY.

ENGLAND'S MOVE for an air limitation treaty has met with a fair reception from Germany and it is to be hoped that we, too, will press this objective earnestly.

Limitation of the size of the world's most feared arm of warfare is the best hope of peace. Of course, as the Italians declare, such an effort will be worthless if all nations do not participate.

Certainly the present unlimited race in armaments now in progress is one that can lead only to civilization's destruction.

It would be a step forward from the proposed Anglo-German conference to a real CONGRESS OF ALL NATIONS, armed to combat the terrors of modern warfare.

As Mr. William Randolph Hearst said in a signed editorial in the Hearst newspapers here last week:

"In order to limit and reduce armaments, in order to enforce rules of conduct and law, there should be a CONGRESS OF NATIONS in which these rules are discussed, finally voted upon and accepted by representatives and governments applying rigorously to ALL NATIONS."

Europe needs a return to human ideals, a revival of the BROTHERHOOD WHICH TRUE RELIGION AND TRUE CIVILIZATION REQUIRE.

PEARL WHITE, [illegible] at 49 in Paris, is affectionately remembered by millions of Americans who have witnessed the motion picture's marvelous evolution. Three decades ago, Miss White was the heroine of the adventure-packed serials that flickered everywhere throughout the land.

It would be impossible to estimate the number of now-middle-aged fathers and mothers who, as children, thrilled week after week to the "Perils of Pauline," which always concluded with the beauteous Pearl at death's door and the black-[illegible]

Miss White's contribution to the theater was not the fine [illegible] but it was ACTING and ACTION. As such it deserves a chapter all its own in film [illegible]

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.

NOT even his Socialistic reforms to alter the American [illegible] to President Roosevelt's heart than the reopening of the whole foreign war debt question.

More than five years of frustration have passed, since the first meeting of the New Deal cabinet, in March, 1933, disclosed that debt revision was the new Administration's "No. 1 Problem."

Here history has been repeated. The amazing parallel in the careers of Woodrow Roosevelt and his American Revolution was [illegible]

IN THE White House they [illegible] he determined upon a radical downward revision of the tariff.

His message to Congress to that effect was actually printed, and in the hands of newspaper editors for release, when Uncle Joe Cannon, breathing with wrath, his famous cigar at a belligerent angle, walked into the President's office without the formality even of removing his hat.

Uncle Joe was then the Czar of Congress. Even Nelson W. Aldrich [illegible] of his hand.

Blowing a vast volume of reeking smoke toward Speaker [illegible] White's new ceiling, the Boss of the House banged his fist on the Chief's desk, and swore by all the gods at once that there would be no monkey business with the protective tariff.

[illegible] the [illegible] remarkable course of recalling his message. The offending recommendation was [illegible] lighted [illegible] working order.

Thus the Hoover Board was born.

FIVE YEARS ago when F. D. R. declared to Congress that war debt revision was No. 1 on his agenda he was [illegible] both sides of the party aisle [illegible] the very widest [illegible]

So high was the [illegible] that was actually the favored [illegible] of the Democratic platform of the Democratic Party.

If the Democrats of Congress had confined the [illegible] with the new President, the country would have [illegible] dizzy whirl along the primrose path of economic and governmental folly. But they didn't.

F. D. R. turned to domestic reform, inventing schemes to [illegible] spending, leaving to the statesmen of the hill, as [illegible] rubber stamps.

Congress took, any war debt revision in 1934 by passing the Johnson Act, which shut European defaulters out of American money markets, and by providing in the Tariff Act this significant language:

"Nothing in this act shall be construed to give any authority to cancel or reduce in any manner, any of the indebtedness of any foreign country to the United States."

Notwithstanding any maneuvers looking toward debt revision which may be under way in London or Paris, that language lies the hands of Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary [illegible]

Although it has surrendered enormous powers to the Executive, the Congress is still alone and supreme in the matter of these debts.

The Brighter Side

Hit-Run Cyclists Vie With Motorists

By DAMON RUNYON

[illegible]

WE WERE crossing Fifth Avenue one pleasant early evening last week when a swarm of bicyclists came swooping down on us out of the motor traffic. There must have been a dozen of them and they were riding two by two and we could see the way they maneuvered that they thought they had a sucker pedestrian to deal with.

The first pair sort of feinted at us, probably trying to make us stop suddenly so the next pair could get us, but instead of stopping we began jumping first this way and that in little short jumps and that confused their aim and caused their front wheels to wobble so that it threw the whole attack out of alignment.

In fact, the third pair almost took a joint header because of the wobbling ahead of them and the whole mob gave us mighty black looks as we reached the sidewalk in safety and stood there giving them the razz. If they had stopped and consulted with us we would have explained to them that the first principle of pedestrian-hunting on bicycles is to be sure of your victim.

We would have shown them where this new generation of bicycle riders in New York City, the greatest in number since the advent of the automobile, knows little or nothing of the fine points of nailing a pedestrian and thus is missing one of the greatest sports of bicycle riding in city streets.

Damon Runyon

We happen to be an old time bicyclist and have probably forgotten more about cutting pedestrians than these lads will ever learn though they have the greatest natural hunting ground for pedestrians in Fifth avenue and other New York thoroughfares that we have ever seen.

Now you take those fellows on Fifth avenue the other night. In the first place their alignment was all wrong. They should have had a couple of scouts out ahead of the main column with flankers on either side of the column proper.

The idea is that the scouts start the pedestrian and get him to fluttering so that even if the scouts miss him he should fall easy victim to the main body. If it happens that he is an extremely agile pedestrian and eludes both the scouts and the main column, the flankers should be able to get him before he reaches the cover of the sidewalk.

We never considered it any trick to get a pedestrian head-on. That was not only crude but you run the risk of puncturing your front tire on the pedestrian's shin bones. In our time the highest scores in pedestrian-hunting were always awarded to those who got the most pedestrians with the least damage to the bicycle.

THE AUTOMOBILISTS came along and soon monopolized the pastime of pedestrian-hunting to such an extent that bicycling almost died out entirely. Now that the bicycle has come back around New York City to an astonishing degree, we note that the automobilists are getting sore. They still want to have all the fun themselves.

We presume the come-back of the bicycle is as yet too recent for the bicyclists to get together and battle the automobilists but we know that some of the rules of the road suggested by the Safety Council in the interests of the British automobilists would have irked us no end in our time.

One of them says that the bicyclists should use both hands and feet. That would have [illegible] us of one of the sweetest [illegible] in our repertoire. We used [illegible] leaving them completely [illegible] a fair fall into our steel steed both hands off the bar, the bar and both legs stuck out at sharp angles free of the pedals. We [illegible] even now thinking of our daring.

Of course this was strictly an exhibition stunt and of no great practical value in the pedestrian pursuit we have been talking about and which requires considerable accuracy. It is true that we once got a pedestrian while performing our feat, but it turned out he was slightly under the influence and was getting ready to lie down in the street anywhere, thinking he was home so we never got credit for him.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon's Sayings

HEARKEN unto my counsel, oh ye damsels of Babylon. Yea, verily me, ye followers after freakish fads and wearers of Oriental pendants!

How long will ye seek to appear sophisticated and worldly-wise? How long will ye pose as CYNICS, and think it chic to be satirical and alluring to be full of smart comebacks?

Know ye not that a man dreadeth a female cynic as a small boy dreadeth a bath?

Behold, a foolish damsel seeketh always to sparkle and to be full of wit. She appeareth clothed in wisdom and set up with many opinions. She provoketh arguments and answereth with repartee. She rebuketh a man with wisecracks. She striketh him DUMB—but not with admiration!

But a wise damsel is sweeter than distilled honey and more simple than the plot of a silent movie. She lighteth her own way with the radiance of her smile and smootheth her path with soft-soap. She seeketh not her own glorification nor to shine amongst the multitude, but is content to pour oil upon the vanity of the intelligent and the stupid, alike. For, all men are as one man unto her—and that one EASY!

Girl About Town

by Ann Marsters

WE WERE [illegible] the other day perusing one of the second hand book shops which line the street. And we came across some three volumes of poetry written by Nathalia Crane.

Nathalia was a child prodigy of poetry. At seven years of age who startled an incredulous world with her profound lyrical genius. Her books "Lava Lane," "The Ladders Fly," and "The Singing Creek" were written when she was between 9 and 12 years of age. Here are the first three verses from one of our favorite poems by Nathalia entitled, "The Rainbow Cat."

Ann Marsters

In the darkness who would guess
In the darkness who would guess
In the darkness who would guess
If the tale of the cat and the weasel theme were there

In the darkness who would care for the question of a hue

Since the darkness holds all lightness beyond the mere desire

Nathalia is now about 24. She has finished college and her third book was published two years ago. It will be interesting to see if she continues to follow the great promise of her childhood.

Boston After Dark

By JACK CONWAY

THIS isn't about the swanky hotel roofs, where society gathers for a bit of choice gossip over a cocktail and tenderloin steak, or of the gay night spots where the bookmakers and men about town squander the money they take from persons they have outsmarted . . . It is about the real "Boston After Dark."

JACK CONWAY

The girl with the flashing eyes and brown hair wasn't concerned with the heat as she waited at the edge of the Cunard Pier, over in East Boston for her man . . . He finally came along dressed in his working clothes, the tops of his socks dangling over his shoes, his face covered with dirt and perspiration and yet illuminated by the flash of youth . . . When the girl, spotless and dressed for the dance floor, saw him, she let out a wild whoop and rushed to greet him.

"Mickey, you look swell," said the girl as she threw her arms around the man's neck and gave him a great, big kiss. In another minute, they were on their way in his car which had been parked near the pier.

Greetings from two veteran police officials who had known my dad.

"Conway and Hart was the crack detective team working out of police headquarters for years," said the elder of the two men.

He was referring to the late Inspector Edward T. Conway and the late Inspector Daniel Hart.

Lloyd Film Laugh Feast

For that vast and breathless audience that take their movies in high and well salted with gags Harold Lloyd's "Professor Beware," now unreeling in the Paramount and Fenway screens is custom made.

It is a 3000-mile cross country dash that has both you and the mail in climactic confusion gasping for breath. You doubtless will not have to guess as much since your last Lloyd picture which only goes to show that neither a world depression nor serious personal problems nor increasing maturity can mar Lloyd's priceless copyrighted brand of comedy.

A serious young professor in Los Angeles, known to Lloyd's police cell and a flock of strip tease ladies, by what he lends a stranger his clothes. He is due in New York to join an expedition to Egypt and when the possibility of a delayed trial ensues the dauntless Egyptologist grabs his plaid hat and makes it in the high way.

En route he is joined by a hobo twosome and a pretty girl in an automobile in pursuit of him to tell him she loves him. From then on the professor breaks all speed laws and there are no limits to the gaffaw.

The young lady Lloyd's Wash is a new comer as is a Lloyd custom. She has very nicely Raymond Walburn and Lionel Stander the latter couldn't be funnier, and William Frawley in the process of getting all dressed up in the professor's clothes will have you hysterical.

As for Professor Lloyd he rates a M. A. for his comedy sense and they might throw in a degree for his amazing athletic ability.

The companion picture "Bulldog Drummond in Africa" features John Howard Heather Angel and H. B. Warner. P. D.

Fifi D'Orsay Plans African Jungle Trip

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—The last person I'd expect to meet in the deep jungles of darkest Africa would be Fifi D'Orsay.

Yet if any of you girls and boys happen to be strolling through the gorilla country of the Belgian Congo come next Michaelmas don't be surprised if Fifi leaps from behind a tree with a "Comment allez vous cherie?"

In other words Mlle. D'Orsay tells me, without a single smile, that she is joining up with an expedition headed by Paul Carroll and plans to follow in the footsteps of Osa Johnson with gun and camera.

Louella O. Parsons

Carroll is the fellow who has been going his quiet, unpublicized way capturing gorillas and other beasts for the studios and zoos.

When I asked Irving Berlin how he hoped to top his achievement in "Alexander's Ragtime Band" he smiled and told me about "The Bowery Nightingale," which is to be a 20th Century-Fox film starring Alice Faye.

No, it isn't a sequel to "Alexander" because Darryl Zanuck doesn't believe in sequels. The story is an original by Lamar Trotti, and Henry King will do the directing late this year.

Chatted with Harold Lloyd over the back fence, so to speak, and learned that he is turning over in his mind the idea of producing pictures with stars other than himself. It is Mary Pickford's idea for Harold to turn producer and apparently she has imparted some of her enthusiasm to Professor (Beware) Lloyd.

So far as the making of "What Ho!" for Paramount is concerned there is a $90,000 charge against the vehicle from the Emanuel Cohen days. And this expense makes Harold hesitate. He is also hesitant about making his next movie in England. But he has always wanted this experience and, sooner or later, the British studios will see him.

They rented their Beverly Hills home to Hope Hampton who expects to remain west for some time to come.

DENIAL DEPARTMENT: Phil Brooks is bothered even in this heat wave over some wrong information which she says was given me. Phyllis wants it known that she got along excellently with Ricky Cortez and Mike Whalen, but bowed out of the cast because she felt that, at this point in her career, the story wasn't right for her. So that, according to Phyllis, is the real low down.

Then there's a grieving wire from Johnny Green, who says it isn't so about him and bride Betty Furness being wrecked romantically and that he didn't even give her a cocktail party. He asks that I get Betty's denial to add to his own, but we've been unable to reach her at the Washington Irving theater, Tarrytown. I'm sure, though, that Betty would echo Johnny's sentiments. And I'm happy to be on the wrong in this instance.

Zanuck has her first citizenship papers — Constance and Norma Talmadge celebrating two birthdays of two friends at the same time, with cakes and all the trimmings. . . The slogan of the big drive to make this the movies' greatest year, will be "Motion Pictures are Your Best Entertainment"—Marcella Burke, who, with Rowland Brown is writing Douglas Corrigan's story, flew in to meet California hero of their Marcella and Gladys Unger have a play, "Desperately Yours," for which Nancy Carroll is angling. Maybe Nancy'll have a hit. . . Abe Finkel and Milton Krims are scripting a Beethoven story for Paul Muni and Warner Brothers.

Police to View 'Dick Tracy'

Deputy Superintendent of Police James H. Clafin and his Bureau of Criminal Investigation staff will be guests tomorrow morning of Loew's theater management at the unreeling of "Dick Tracy Returns" at the State Theater.

This is the opening chapter in the new Republic serial based on the popular cartoon strip. The showing will be at 10 a. m. tomorrow only.

Subsequent chapters of the thrilling exploits of the adventurous Tracy will be screened every Saturday, at 10 a. m. at Loew's State Theater only, in addition to other interesting short subjects by courtesy of H. M. Addison, division manager for Loew's theaters and House Manager Fred Greenway.

Love Authority Speaks Out On: Petting---Problem of the Generation

What Parents Should Do About 'Playing With Fire'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage
(Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Why are parents uneasy about the petting boys and girls indulge in?

They will tell you simply "playing with fire," they will say.

But how were these [illegible] youngsters taught the nature of actual fire? Not by making a bogey of it surely! Not by telling them that never in their lives must they touch a box of matches!

No, but by patiently explaining to them how fire starts how controlled and how, if it gets too high, you put it out. At the same time, if you were fortunate parents, you saw to it that your children developed enough curiosity and self-reliance to learn that by experience so that they would carefully set themselves and the playmates ablaze. After that you trusted them.

We can't, nowadays, keep young girls in ignorance of the fact that human nature is an inflammable sort of thing. On the contrary the more clearly they understand it the better. Nor can we keep boys and girls apart. Our defense must lie elsewhere and our parents' efforts must prevent that. In fact [illegible] have no wish to keep them apart.

So what are parents to do? [illegible]

BETTY ALDEN

On Beacon Hill

Eastern Yacht Club Favored Spot

By BETTY ALDEN

INSTEAD of telling Sunday's column summer resorters, we are talking of "Sunday from the beaches" . . . just because it sounds cooler.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Lincoln Pierce, of Ocean Avenue, Marblehead Neck, wound up a big hot day yesterday with a pleasant evening at the weekly dinner dance of the Eastern Yacht Club . . . where dinner was served on the Eastern's big porch overlooking Marblehead harbor, dotted with hundreds of summer craft and yachts quietly riding at anchor in the soft evening light. And the guests danced between courses 'neath the light of a big wide moon . . . The Pierces' guests included Wallace's cousin, John P. Curtis and Nelson Curtis, 3rd, of Milton, and Windsor Mackays of Swampscott.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Harding, of Beverly Farms, entertained a group of friends at the Myopia and others present included Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Jackson, of "Crowfield Neck," Marblehead Neck; Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Livingston and Mrs. Hortense Robinson, who entertained about a dozen at bridge before dinner.

Aside from the Eastern dances, entertaining at Marblehead this summer is marked by a quiet informality very much in contrast to the lavish formal balls parties of former years . . . Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vernon Bernard, who are occupying a house directly across from the Yacht club, are entertaining house guest this coming week-end which marks the opening of "Race Week," the entertaining yachting regatta of New England . . . and the following Saturday, August 19th, they are sailing for a vacation in Bermuda. They will be accompanied by their debutante daughter, Lilian, who has a wide circle of friends in Bermuda who have already sent her invitations to moonlight picnics, dances at the Castle Harbour and swimming and beach parties galore . . . William Nickerson, of Duxbury, another onion ski enthusiast, will also join them on the trip and their headquarters will be at Shelly Bay.

Signing the Fernalds' guests book this week-end will be Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Nickerson of Newton and Chatham, Mrs. Frederick Bartlett of Philadelphia and Miss Jeannette Jardine, of Cambridge and North Truro.

Hamilton Miss Tries Bowling Luck

BOWLING EXPERTS might criticize Sally Sears' style, but she had an enjoyable afternoon hitting the pins at a miniature game on the North Shore. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Sears of Hamilton.

Medford Man Weds in West

News comes from across the continent of the marriage of Richard T. Kennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Kennett of Medford, to Alice Van Zandt Owens, daughter of Harry Thurston Owens, of New York.

The ceremony took place Wednesday afternoon in St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Berkeley, Calif. The couple will live in Los Angeles, following a honeymoon trip to Lake Tahoe.

The bride is a great-granddaughter of Sir Thomas Knilton Austin of London, and on her maternal side is descended from Wynand Van Zandt, a founder and vestryman of Trinity Church, New York.

The bridegroom attended the Medford High School and Massachusetts State College.

Gloria Vanderbilt at Newport

Miss Gloria Vanderbilt, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. MacCulloch Miller at their Adirondacks camp, has returned to Newport to stay with her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. Miss Mary Harriman of New York is also with Mrs. Whitney.

Helen Rotch Will Marry Sept. 3rd

Of interest to New York and Boston society will be the marriage of Helen Rotch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Rotch, of Commonwealth Avenue, to Dr. Charles Lee Buxton, of New York and New Canaan, Ct.

The ceremony will be performed Sept. 3rd, at Hill Top Farm, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Rotch at Lakeville, Mass., followed by an informal garden reception and wedding breakfast.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Lydia, as maid of honor, and two other sisters, Helen and Katharine, will be bridesmaids. Eleanor Lawson, of Salem, Kate Loring, of Concord, and Josephine Knowles, of New Bedford, will complete the bridesmaids' group.

Edward T. Buxton Jr., of New Canaan, Ct., will be best man for his brother and the large usher group will include several of Dr. Buxton's associates in the medical profession.

The bridegroom-to-be is a son of Mrs. Edward T. Buxton and the late Mr. Buxton. He graduated from Princeton in 1927, the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1932 and is resident surgeon at the Sloan Maternity Hospital, New York. Miss Rotch spent a year at school in Switzerland before attending Cambridge School and Bennington College.

Roosevelt Son at St. Andrew

Among the many swimming in the pool taking advantage of the surf bathing at the Algonquin Hotel, St. Andrews-by-the-Sea this week, were Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, who sailed over from the President's summer home at Campobello, N. B., where they are visiting.

Mrs. John Donaldson and Mr. Rogers Donaldson, of Brookline, are vacationing at the Algonquin where Dr. William F. Cotting and Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Ellis are also guests.

MRS. FORBES VISITING

Mrs. F. Murray Forbes, of Wellesley, is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Denison Sawyer, at The Ledges, Newport. Mrs. Sawyer's son, Alexander Cushing, recently sailed for a vacation in Europe.

Eleo Sears Goes Night Clubbing

Of all the many distinguished people Boston society has have had a more colorful career than Eleanora Sears. As a feminine pioneer in many fields, she has become one of the first women airplane passengers, first woman polo player, first feminine wearer of shorts, tennis star, squash player, skilled equestienne, mountain climber and, of course, the world's most famous pedestrienne.

With all of these athletic activities crowded into her life, Eleo has had little time for night clubs or the more frivolous doings of society, so it was with no little surprise that New York's cafe society encountered Eleo and Alexander Sweinert sharing a pleasant evening at the Stork Club this week.

Dining and dancing at a night club hardly sounds like "training" for a tennis tournament, but Eleo's fully bikes have kept her in perfect condition and she has no need to abide by rigid training rules to prepare for the women's veterans class at the national ladies tournament at Longwood, August 22. She hasn't entered her name for the competition as yet, but all her friends are counting on her good sportsmanship to help make the new class a success, and all of her guests will be pleased to learn of her decision.

Mrs. George Wigglesworth and Mrs. Lewis Bemis

Bar Harbor Fetes Rear Admiral Todd

Hostesses in Bar Harbor are planning a number of parties to entertain Rear Admiral and Mrs. Percy B. Todd, who arrived there aboard the U. S. S. Philadelphia. Admiral Todd is in command of the training division of the United States Navy and is stationed in Bar Harbor during the annual maritime training cruise of the Bar Harbor Club.

They are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Trevor, 3rd, at Hull's Cove and were entertained at dinner Wednesday evening by Mrs. Thomas Reath.

ARTHUR MORSES AWAY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morse have arrived in New York from their home on Pigeon Hill, Weston, and will remain a few days at the Waldorf Astoria. Dr. F. Gorham Brigham of Chestnut Hill is a guest there also.

MARKETS — BOSTON AMERICAN — COMMENT

More Praise For Rukeyser

American industrial and financial leaders continued to bestow praise on "Streamlined Financial Statements," written by Merryle Stanley Rukeyser who is economic commentator for the Hearst newspapers.

Excerpts from letters follow:

From H. J. [illegible], The Better Business Bureau of New York city:

"I have read thoroughly and with admiration the pamphlet, 'Streamlined Financial Statements.' May I have two or three more copies to give to certain friends?"

"With much clarity, you have shown industry a common sense, illuminating way to tell its financial story. It is of vast importance that the public be shown that the house of industry cannot exist without foundation, walls and roof—labor, capital and management.

"Best wishes for the complete success of this new, valuable service you are rendering to American business."

From T. [illegible], Harvard [illegible]:

"I think you have turned out a very interesting booklet."

From [illegible], Vice-president [illegible]:

"We have read this pamphlet with interest since, unquestionably, the matter is one that is receiving active consideration in industry today."

From [illegible], Vice-president [illegible]:

"Thank you very much for sending me your most interesting brochure, 'Streamlined Financial Statements,' which I have looked through carefully."

From Frank [illegible], Comptroller [illegible]:

"This acknowledges your letter of July 19th and enclosure, 'Streamlined Financial Statements,' which I found very interesting."

From John M. [illegible], Lee Brothers:

"I think your booklet about streamlined financial statements was very interesting. The only previous publication in this field to arouse my attention has been one by J. Austin Smith.

"I would go a lot farther in agreeing with you in your conclusions, and particularly the part on Page 11, if we were not tied up so completely by the Federal legislation and regulation. There is so much fear about permitting material fact that recent balance sheets carry separate pages of notes. It used to be possible to put the notes on the balance sheet but any ordinary situation nowadays cannot be presented on an ordinary sheet of paper. We have gone so far in the way of telling everything, that I doubt the average security holder has enough interest to read present material, and I quite agree with you that the large number of notes make general understanding almost impossible.

"I hope that you will pursue your line of thinking because I am convinced that the present trend is all wrong. Beyond any question it doesn't add to the possibility of selling securities, nor does it add to understanding of their value."

From C. [illegible] Motter, vice president, and [illegible], Baldwin Locomotive Works:

"I have before me your letter of July 19th, enclosing a pamphlet entitled Streamlined Financial Statements.

"I have read this with interest and appreciate very much your sending it to me."

From E. H. [illegible], Little Cooper [illegible]:

"I have your letter of July 19 and have read with interest your booklet, 'Streamlined Financial Statements.' You have handled this subject in a very interesting and informative fashion.

"I am asking Mr. Orton B. Motter of Carl Byoir and Associates, 10 East 40th street, New York city, our public relations counsel, to get in touch with you in the near future to discuss the points you have raised, and I am asking Mr. Motter to see that your name is placed on our mailing list so you will receive copies of our annual reports and general financial releases."

From F. D. Groff, assistant to the president, the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company:

"Upon my return to the city I find your letter of July 19th and the very interesting booklet 'Streamlined Financial Statements,' which should be productive of much good.

"As you doubtless know, the railroads have for a long time realized the importance of disseminating information similar to that shown in your booklet, and have been doing so for a number of years."

It is not an exaggeration to say that currently there is no stock market. Erratic price fluctuations such as those recently witnessed are of no importance when volume is so small. BETTY'S FATHER FELL FOR THIS WILD-CAT OIL STOCK. HE'S BUYING UP TO THE HILT! I'M GOING TO SELL SOME TO MANDRAKE, TOO. THAT'S MY WAY OF GETTING EVEN WITH HIM!
LET BY-GONES BE BY-GONES, MANDRAKE. I WANT TO LET YOU IN ON A GOOD THING. THIS OIL STOCK IS CHEAP AND YOU'LL MAKE A FORTUNE OUT OF IT.
REALLY?
DADDY'S GOING TO BUY SOME, SO IT MUST BE GOOD, MANDRAKE.
I'LL NEVER MAKE A MISTAKE IN SUCH MATTERS.
MEOW! MEOW! MEOW!

Austen Lake:

Why the Bees Will Turn To Night Ball Next Year

IF THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE BOSTON Bees see fit to adopt this suggestion I promise not to throw a typographical hysteric and claim they did so by the pure, irresistible persuasion of this column. Yet, with taxes, player costs, salary commitments and upkeep, I trust the Bees will not think me presumptuous in hinting that they could use some more income. So, for the sum of two cents a copy, I am offering them this perfectly priceless thought, not original, idea, to install batteries of flood lights on their grandstand roof 'twixt now and next summer and fix up a schedule of night games as the surest means of luring new payloads through their turnstiles.

AUSTEN LAKE

This is sure to offend Bob Quinn's ears. Because the portly little magnate has often expressed an opinion that night baseball is a pernicious nuisance and an ugly weed growth likely to choke the early flower [illegible] game's idealism. But I feel sure that B[illegible] agrees that baseball is a commercial business like all o[illegible] the duty of making money. [illegible] ity as time goes on. So [illegible] vulgar showmanship may be [illegible] and his employers some [illegible]

Brooklyn's Sensational Success

THE BOSTON BEES have a background of considerable wealth, but the wealth is cautiously tucked away in other vaults than the Bees and hence is not handy for such lavish spending as is the case a few Commonwealth avenue where the Red Sox reside. Unlike Tom Yawkey, the solitary cash angel of the Sox, the Bees' money papas are many and have to look longer at their dollars.

Dog-Racing the Lesser Deterrent

SO, IT IS DOUBTFUL THAT QUINN'S SCRUPLES AGAINST the incandescent game can stand up against such an audit, especially as Boston is more heart to counter diversions than either Cincinnati or Brooklyn where the beaches are more remote, the mountains and lake resorts farther distant and there is no continual, summer-long, mad merry-go-round of horse racing. Of course, Boston has dog-racing to contend with at night but the dogs at Wonderland attract a lesser volume of add-ons than the horses, and the after-work crowds, seeking something to [illegible] their boredom, would more than pay the cost of light installations and something over.

Harvard Ace Starring On Cape

By FRANK CONWAY
Cape League Correspondent

BUZZARDS BAY, Aug. 5 — Ed Ingalls, Harvard ace hurler the last three years, is one of the big reasons why Neil Mahoney's Harwich outfit is pacing the Cape Cod League. The former Crimson right-hander is setting the summer circuit afire with his blazing fast ball.

Playing Greyhounds At Taunton Track | Long Shots Win In Fast Finishes

By JACK CONWAY

WHEN I ARRIVED at the Taunton dog track the other night, Johnny Moran handed me a program which he marked.

Mr Boston

"Unless you want to go broke," insisted Dan Carroll who watched me as I looked at Moran's selections, "you won't bet on a single dog Moran has marked."

I took a quick look at the daily double combination which was Speedy Traffic and Jungle Jim. It was my intention to play this combination but on my way to the mutuel windows I met Frank Anderson and Jim Eagan, who conduct the Taunton track, and as they told me about the wonders of their racing plant the mutuel windows closed.

Of course Speedy Traffic and Jungle Jim was the winning forty dollar and the payoff of $26.80 wouldn't have been hard to take.

Johnny Moran would then come to my box and ask me if I had played his figures.

After any man has picked two straight winners, I am always looking for a dog he hasn't picked. I believe that the old law of percentage is running very much against a selector who has put his finger on two winners in a row. I have known handicappers who have gone scoreless for five and six days, and who have grown so mean and ugly as a result of their losing streak that they end up hating themselves.

So there wasn't a chance of my trailing along with the Moran dog in the third race. I watched the "tote" board and bought myself an interest in Indian Boonie, which won to pay $19.20. I confess I wasn't even remotely interested in the record of Indian Boonie. I saw that he was rated as an 8 to 1 shot.

Later in the evening I suggested to Dan Carroll that we do some long shot playing. We invested in Lady Clerk, which won at a $24.20 price, but we found out our betting commissioner had gone wide on one of the turns only to have the mutuel windows slammed in his face.

I hit my real stride in the last two races, when I didn't get a big in the money. Earlier I also made the mistake of backing Jack London, a 1-2 choice.

The quickest way to go broke at a race track is by playing odds-on favorites. I know this as well as the next man, but I like Jack London's books so well I thought a dog named after him might also be good. Hereafter my interest in Jack London will be purely a literary one.

Why Dog Handle Has Dropped

FRANK ANDERSON has been around dog racing for a great many years. I was anxious to get his reasons for the falling off in the mutuel handle at his track.

"The average person is short of money," said Frank. "Down here, in Taunton and Dighton, there are thousands of mill people out of work. We had almost 5000 applications for jobs in the mutuel department and parking area, and we have taken care of almost 500 persons by employing a stagger system.

"People who used to have $40 when they came to the track last season now only have $10.

"Our attendance has been as large as it was a year ago, but the handle has been off by almost $700,000. This is a loss of about $70,000 to our association.

"Our racing has been good, and we know that when business conditions get better we shall share in the prosperity."

James Eagan also had much to do with establishing dog racing in Taunton and agreed with Anderson's statement.

Looks Like Tracks in Florida

FROM AN architectural and beauty standpoint, the Taunton track is the finest in Massachusetts. It reminds me of some of the better tracks in Florida.

You find many summer people at Taunton. They get a kick out of betting on the greyhounds.

"We were interested to learn how the mutuel handle would go at Narragansett Park," said Eagan, "as they draw on part of the same territory that we do. Their handle has been off this week, which convinces us that dogs and horses have both been hit by general business conditions."

Taunton's track, like Revere, has camera finishes. The judges are very much pleased, and a race track that hopes to [illegible] must have camera finishes.

At Taunton good old Rusty does his running from the upper part of the track. I think this has a tendency to make the greyhounds race a bit wide.

On one occasion, I was betting on the No. 1 dog. He got off even with the lead but headed to take a sniff at Rusty. As my eyes traveled the entire length of the track a greyhound with a sock like Joe Louis had won for a long.

When the greyhounds jam at the first turn, anything can happen. Perhaps it is just as well to back the long shots as they may possess more power and be better able to stand a free-for-all mixup with the rest of the field.

One thing certain about the greyhounds is that they are in here doing their best. And if you happen to come up with the winning number you will tell the world it was a swell race. It is always that way at the track.

BEST BET—LADY BLONDELL

FIRST RACE—FUTURITY

First Half Daily Double

TRANSPORTER—JUNGLE JIM

PAT COLWELL

FP	Dog	Wt.	Owner	Odds
6	Transporter	64	W. L. Bryand	3-1
3	Jungle Jim	70	Jess Williams	8-1
5	Pat Colwell	60	Fred Palermo	8-1
4	Pepper Red	62	Tom Baird	6-1
7	Curly Cutlet	74	O. and B. Ken.	6-1
2	Silver Darling	56	J. L. Ayotte	6-1
1	Flash Chord	62	Dan Sullivan	5-1
8	Bobbie Glen	54	Frank Lane	8-1

TRANSPORTER was hit in the last and lost enough ground to have won. With any sort of break it should win tonight, though JUNGLE JIM will be dangerous. PAT COLWELL figures to be in the money.

Second Half Daily Double

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY

JOE COTTON—COMMON CHORD

JOE DIMAG

7	Joe Cotton	66	O. R. Wohlnut	3-1
6	Common Chord	48	Dan Sullivan	4-1
3	Joe DiMag	61	C. Dahlberg	5-1
1	Butch's Best	67	O. and B. Ken.	5-1
3	Red Tong	62	Fred Street	6-1
8	Bomb	60	Cedar Pt. Ken.	6-1
5	Other Career	56	Tom Baird	10-1
4	Little Mutt	60	A. L. Smart	10-1

JOE COTTON went wide at the last turn last out and rolled by a very narrow margin. Tonight its chances seem better, with COMMON CHORD the one to beat. JOE DIMAG should be in the money.

THIRD RACE—5-16 MILE

PROLOGUE—JUST MANDY

GOOD PUNCH

1	Prologue	69	M. T. Dubiel	2-1
3	Just Mandy	55½	Robert Bryand	6-1
2	Good Punch	64	L. M. Rickpatk	5-1
4	Nigger Doll	68½	G. R. Rogers	5-1
5	Pretty Bebe	51½	E. Bibler	6-1
8	Upper Chase	76	Art Wilson	6-1
6	Liquid Red	63	Cedar Pt. Ken.	8-1
7	Eve	53	A. L. Smart	8-1

PROLOGUE should run well from this box and round the first turn on the head end. JUST MANDY can do the forcing, with GOOD PUNCH not far off.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY

JIM GLENN—DEUCE ACTOR

FLIGHT LEADER

2	Jim Glenn	61	J. Highhouse	3-1
1	Deuce Actor	66	Forbe Spencer	6-1
7	Flight Leader	64	O. R. Wohlnut	5-1
4	Glittering Band	69	Fred Palermo	6-1
8	Magic Key	68	L. M. Rickpatk	6-1
6	Just Chatter	56	Art Wilson	6-1
5	Jinx Breeze	54	G. Lippold, Jr.	8-1
7	Dreamy Eyes	48	F. B. Stutz	8-1

JIM GLENN, a flash from the gate, can shred a long lead and hold it, though DEUCE ACTOR may run better from this posting. FLIGHT LEADER could take it all.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE

SPECTURE CRONY—CAP HARE

HAWKE'S CHOICE

1	Specture Crony	56	Ben Neal, Jr.	3-1
3	Cap Hare	58	Forbe Spencer	6-1
4	Hawke's Choice	53	R. Stephenson	6-1
2	Gallant Mick	73	M. J. Gavan	5-1
6	Morning Mouse	52	Tom Baird	6-1
7	Schoolgirl	63	J. Highhouse	6-1
8	Odessa Girl	55	J. L. Ayotte	8-1
5	Indian Bonnie	53	A. L. Smart	8-1

The red blanket means a lot to the top one here, and it should head the pack all the way. CAP HARE likes the inside and may ride close up. HAWKE'S CHOICE can take the rest.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY

TUFT PARTIE—UPSTART

DICTATOR JOHN

8	Tuft Partie	66	L. M. Rickpatk	3-1
1	Upstart	58	Paul Boone	4-1
3	Dictator John	63	Dan Sullivan	5-1
6	Carbon's Express	61	W. R. Hall	5-1
7	Dusty Dan	58½	C. Dahlberg	6-1
4	Meadow Cutlet	63	M. C. Sparks	6-1
5	Chieftain Crown	70	C. A. Rhodes	8-1
2	Mad Money	66	Ben Neal, Jr.	8-1

If TUFT PARTIE breaks and runs as it did in its last, the issue here will never be in doubt. UPSTART has seemed to tire in recent races, but should manage to head DICTATOR JOHN to the wire.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16 MILE

BAD FRANK—RECORD CLIPPER

CROSS TRAFFIC

2	Big Frank	70	Robert Bryand	3-1
1	Record Clipper	60	Dan Sullivan	6-1
3	Cross Traffic	66	F. L. Rennie	6-1
4	Master Tickler	66	M. J. Gavan	6-1
8	No Lucky	56	Ben Neal, Jr.	6-1
5	Bridged Ballad	54	Tom Baird	8-1
7	Glacial	70	Jess Williams	8-1
6	Lady Mac It	59	W. L. Bryand	8-1

If by paucity a question should break in this number, should BIG FRANK be shirt, he will head RECORD CLIPPER round the first turn and then home. OFF its last, CROSS TRAFFIC can be in the money.

126TH RACE—FUTURITY

GLOUNA LOUNA—MORE CLASS

WHO'S WHO

5	Glouna Louna	62	M. J. Gavan	3-1
3	More Class	61	W. R. Hall	4-1
7	Who's Who	65	Pat Conway	3-1
4	Stormy Breeze	73	G. Lippold, Jr.	5-1
8	Comrag's Caress	70	C. A. Rhodes	6-1
6	M'lla'mah Robin	65	O. R. Wohlnut	6-1
2	Pete Dooley	63	A. L. Smart	8-1
1	Jack Rio Kan	66	Forbe Spencer	8-1

GLOUNA LOUNA stands out like a light in this field and should never leave the home in doubt. MORE CLASS won its last and seems best of the others. WHO'S WHO for what is left.

NINTH RACE—5-16 MILE

LADY BLONDELL—SCARRED LADY

MRS. SIMPSON

3	Lady Blondell	59	M. C. Sparks	3-1
1	Scarred Lady	54	O. and B. Ken.	4-1
6	Mrs. Simpson	57	J. L. Ayotte	5-1
8	Lilbe	55	A. L. Smart	5-1
2	Supply Officer	64	F. L. Brents	6-1
4	Traffic Nell	64	Frank Lane	6-1
5	Uncle	68	J. Highhouse	6-1
7	Kitty Horsham	60	Forbe Spencer	8-1

I rely on LADY BLONDELL'S late rush to bring her home on the head end in this number. SCARRED LADY, with the red blanket, will be dangerous. MRS. SIMPSON in over a threat.

TENTH RACE—3-16 MILE

BEAVERSTEIN—TREATY TRAFFIC

MY CHERRY

3	Beaverstein	85½	F. B. Stutz	3-1
1	Treaty Traffic	51	F. L. Brents	8-1
5	My Cherry	54	Tom Baird	5-1
6	Another Chord	70	Fred Street	5-1
8	Irvin Andrew	67	W. T. Dubiel	6-1
4	Lady Ace	55	Homer Bagwell	8-1
2	Black Gander	54	G. Lippold, Jr.	8-1
7	Ecuador	56	M. J. Gavan	8-1

Turning Point In Both Loops Starts Today

By Associated Press

Another of those "turning points" that have had this season swinging along in a groove somewhere between a merry-go-round and a streak of lightning pops up in both major leagues today.

The New York Yankees, enjoying their gaudiest Western whirl of the year, tangle with Cleveland's persistent Indians in a series for the American League leadership. And the New York Giants, doddering along 5½ games off the National League pace, make a last-ditch stand in their own Polo Grounds against the front-running Pirates of Pittsburgh.

The heat is all on the Indians and Giants. Anything less than a sweep in the week-end campaigning will do either little good.

By virtue of hanging an 8-4 beating on the Detroit Tigers yesterday while the Tribe's tilt with the Red Sox was rained out, the Yanks invaded Cleveland with a 2½ game bulge. The Giants were blanked 6-0 by the Chicago Cubs, and, although the Bucs lost 4-3 to the Boston Bees, Bill Terry's Terriers were left seven games back on the all-important losing side.

CHANCE TO LEAD

If the Indians should lose only one game to the Yanks, Gehrig and company will go back east in front—and when the world champions are on the sunrise side of the Alleghenies, bouncing them out of the league lead is about as easy as trying to pass a fire engine on its way to work.

In the "crooshal" American League set, both teams are nursing physical ailments. For the Yanks, big Rufus the Red Ruffing is suffering from an ailing knee and belting Bill Dickey had to retire from yesterday's game with a slightly banged-up leg. The Tribe isn't exactly cheering about the sore arm bothering its pitching ace, Johnny Allen.

As a result, Manager Joe McCarthy, holding the upper hand anyway, is gambling with Bump Hadley, who's something less than a dependable winner, in today's opener against young Bobby Feller.

LIFT MELTON SUSPENSION

In fact, both of the three-game sets are opening with pitching surprises. The Giants, coated with whitewash yesterday for the second time in three days and the 12th time this season, are lifting the suspension on Cliff Melton, the stringbean southpaw, who will start against the Pirates. Pie Traynor's hired hands are bringing rookie Bob Klinger off the hospital list for his first outing since he discovered he couldn't pitch off a sore arm back on July 24.

Weed Killer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 (AP)—Grass specialists of the United States Golf Association are conducting experiments in which tear gas is used to kill weeds on greens.

The gas kills the weeds all right, the experts said today—but it also kills the grass. However, in two days the poison is gone from the ground, and the plot is ready to be reseeded.

German Cup Team Sails

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Aug. 5 (AP)—Germany's Davis Cup tennis team of Henner Henkel and Georg von Metaxa sailed on the Europa today for the United States. Also in the party were substitute Rolf Goepfert and the non-playing Captain, C. F. Uhl.

The Germans, European zone champions, will play either Australia or Japan in the interzone finals at Brookline, Mass., Aug. 18-19-20. The ultimate survivor then will face the United States in the challenge round.

Holy Name Nine Faces Silk Sox In Twi Playoff

After beating the Brighton Civics in a hotly contested ball game at Fallon Field, Roslindale, the Holy Name Club of Roslindale will journey to the Fens Stadium, Back Bay, tonight to open their semi-final series with the Mass. Knitting Mills for the East Division championship.

The church boys have displayed some fine baseball the last few weeks and are due to give the Knitters plenty of headaches.

In their last two games these clubs played a 10-9 game, which the Holy Namers copped at Fallon Field, and later on, with both pitchers allowing only three hits apiece, the Knitters took a 3—2 decision at the Fens Stadium.

Bill D'Entremont or Al Drottar will get the nod for the Knitters, while Curt Fullerton or Thompson will twirl for the church nine.

Roslindale Town Club will entertain St. Augustines of South Boston in the second bill of the night in the West Division semi-finals at Healy Field, Roslindale.

The Saints took the opening game at the South Boston Stadium last night by a score of 6—1 behind the stellar pitching of Sheehan.

The "Townies" feel as though they can even the count this evening with their ace, "Lefty" Pinkham, on the hill.

The "Townies" are entering the semi-finals for the third successive year and hope to overcome their jinx of previous years when they were eliminated at this point, by putting their full strength into tonight's battle.

Stripp Pacing Bees

By WALTER KILEY

It's time the boys around the circuit started giving Deacon Danny MacFayden the credit he deserves . . . His triumph over the league-leading Pirates yesterday was his 10th win of the season against three losses.

Vince DiMaggio isn't trying to be a home run king this season, but that four-ply clout with mates on bases was the clincher in that final with the disciples of Pie Traynor.

If there were any murmurs around town over the Bees buying the veteran Joe Stripp, they have certainly ceased by now . . . Joe was always a pretty fair country ball player and he certainly has proven it during his two-day sojourn in Boston . . . the double killing he started in the eighth inning when the Pirates had the sacks loaded just about saved Deacon Danny.

It's surprising that all the major league clubs waived on Johnny Riddle . . . while it's true the Bees didn't need Johnny, being so well fortified with Lopez and Mueller, the fact remains that Brooklyn, Philadelphia, St. Louis and many others could use a receiver as capable as Riddle.

Bob Quinn started a fad of aged rookies with Lou Fette and Jim Turner . . . the Red Sox now have Jim Harris and Joe Heving . . . Fred MacIsaac, veteran telegrapher warns that we had better watch out or Virgil Barnes will be back in our midst.

The Cubs conclude the western invasion at the Hive but the Bees play right at home to entertain the Giants and Brooklyn next week.

• • •

Those Bees may fall short of their first division hopes but those loyal fans who have been dropping out to the Hive daily have been witnessing some great baseball.

Walter Kiley Leaves Hospital

Walter Kiley, baseball editor of the Boston Evening American, was today discharged from St. Elizabeth's Hospital where he was treated for a head injury. The scribe struck his head against a steel girder in the press box at National League Park, yesterday afternoon, and was rendered unconscious.

Dr. Martin English found Kiley suffering from a slight concussion. Kiley's condition was improved enough today to warrant his removal to his home in Milton.

It is expected Kiley will be back writing baseball the first of next

Midget Auto Races Tomorrow

That midget racing auto fans get a chance to see their favorite in action with Old Sol furnishing the illumination, the management of the Riverside Park Speedway, Medford, has arranged to put his drivers through their paces tomorrow afternoon rather than at night.

Starting tomorrow afternoon at 2.15 the time trials will be held. After the completion of this event the first heat of the first race will go on promptly at 3 o'clock.

15 Record Holders Compete on Charles

Hot Battle for Third Base in Popularity Poll

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—The hot corner is hotter than ever these days with the nation's fans staging a dog fight over who should be the third baseman on the All-America baseball team which is being selected in a coast-to-coast popularity poll conducted by the manufacturers of Kellogg's corn flakes.

No less than ten men of the 16 major league third basemen have a chance to win the election—and the Buick automobile which goes with it—in the balloting that closes at midnight tomorrow.

ROLFE, OTT HIGH

Red Rolfe, of the New York Yankees, an old favorite; Mel Ott, slugging star of the New York Giants, who is up among the leaders of his league in runs batted in, runs scored, home runs and batting; Buddy Lewis, personable youngster of the Washington Nationals; Stanley Hack, who is hitting well over the .300 mark for the Chicago Cubs, and Ken Keltner, brilliant home-run hitting rookie of the Cleveland Indians, seem to have the most supporters, and the winner, to be announced a week from Monday, should be among them.

CHANCE OF BEE

However, Lee Handley of the Pirates, Billy Werber of the Athletics, Harland Clift of the Browns, Cookie Lavagetto of the Dodgers, and Del Germs of the Braves all have their supporters, and with the fans of each city rallying around their favorites there's no telling just who will get the call.

But inasmuch as the election is not just based on records and achievements and such, but on the man's personality and sportsmanship as well, none of these men might get the call. Maybe the All-American, all-popular third baseman will be a third string rookie with the Panhandle Bearcats.

144 Holes in Day!

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (AP)—J. Smith Ferebee is trying to get in some golf between dawn and dark today—144 holes of it—and has wagered $2500 and 1200 acres of a Virginia plantation he can complete the marathon at an average of 95 strokes, or under, for the eight rounds.

A husky young Chicago investment broker, Ferebee will gamble on his stamina over the four heavily wooded courses at Olympia Fields, scene of the recent Chicago open tournament.

Broker Nears Goal In $17,500 Weird Golf Wager

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (AP)—Maintaining a brisk pace and playing excellent golf over the rolling, heavily wooded Olympia Fields layout, J. Smith Ferebee was away fast this morning in his attempt to play 144 holes between dawn and dark for a wager of $2500 and a half interest in a $30,000 Virginia plantation.

Starting his trek at 5 a. m., the 31-year-old investment broker completed 54 holes in four and one-half hours. He started with a 90 on the difficult No. 4 course, then played it again in 82 strokes. He switched to the No. 1 course for his third round and turned in another 82.

DRINK ORANGE JUICE

At the end of 36 holes, which he completed in two hours and 50 minutes, he paused briefly for a glass of orange juice, then resumed his attempt to complete the eight rounds, playing all four Olympia courses twice, without scoring more than 95 strokes on any round.

Accompanying Ferebee were three caddies, an official scorer and a gallery of about 50 spectators.

At the crack of dawn, Ferebee smacked a ball down the fairway of the Olympia Field course, scene of the recent Chicago open tournament, and started his marathon play. During the 15 hours between sunrise and sunset Ferebee hopes to complete 144 holes of golf, twice over each of the four courses, making a score of 95 or less for each 18 holes. If his score goes over 95 for any one of the rounds he loses the plantation.

The estate, which is in Princess Anne County, Virginia, between Norfolk and Virginia Beach, was purchased for $30,000 two years ago by Ferebee and Fred Tuerk.

Ferebee said he and Turek could not agree on the management, neither wanted to buy out the other, and neither wanted to go to court. So the wager was made.

"About a month ago I played 90 holes one day," the husky 31-year-old broker chuckled, "and I'm confident I can do 144 holes. Fred bet his half share of the 2400-acre tract against my half share that I couldn't do it. Other friends put up $2500 additional."

29-MILE WALK

To win Ferebee must walk at least 29.3 miles and some golfers, with a flare for mathematics, say he will have to swing 760 times, which is at the rate of five strokes every two minutes, or 24 seconds to the stroke. That's figuring on the basis of 95 for each round. The eight rounds measure 51,568 yards.

Ferebee will eat and drink "on the run." A physician will accompany him most of the way.

If he takes more than 95 strokes on any one of the rounds, thus losing the wager, he will complete the contest, he said, because of other bets.

Gayle Makinnie Meets Kelly At Agawam

AGAWAM PARK, Aug. 5—Gaylena Kinnie, the Columbia gelding which has won 16 out of 21 races in two seasons, and Kelly, the Cleveland trotter which stole the show from the mighty Greyhound at the recent Goshen meeting, meet tomorrow in the $5000 Hanover Stake, feature of the closing program of the 10-day Grand Circuit meeting at Agawam track.

There are six others in the stake, including Hanover the Great, Bravo and Farr, all big winners in the circuit.

Kelly and his veteran driver, Irishman Pat O'Conell, have become great favorites with the Grand Circuit crowds.

The $5000 Massachusetts pacing stake is companion piece on the Saturday program with a field of 13 named, including Mack Abbey, Dusty Hanover, Alta Direct and Simcoe Harvester, the latter a Canadian invader.

A total of ten dashes are also programmed, the smallest field to start being eight.

A lone gunman, about 24 years old, in a sensation holdup, robbed the Stevens square branch office of the Medford Savings Bank of $2933 today.

But within five minutes, police in a radio cruising car arrested the alleged robber as he was "walking fast" along Grant avenue, about two blocks from the bank.

Police said they found the stolen money in a bag which the man was carrying.

They said they also found a loaded 38-calibre revolver in his pocket.

HELD AT GUN POINT

The alarm, which sent police hurrying to the scene, was sounded by Ralph T. Folsom, of Sherwood road, Medford, manager of the branch, and a clerk, Miss Catherine Nestor.

In the meantime the robber held Miss Elizabeth Baptiste, paying teller, at gunpoint while he swooped up the money in a drawer and placed it in a cloth bag.

The bandit then walked from behind the counter and left the bank by the front entrance.

NOTICE SUSPECT

Patrolman Charles McCarthy and Joseph Maxwell, summoned by a radio call, noticed the man walking along Grant avenue. Pulling alongside of him they drew their revolvers, ordering the suspect to throw up his hands.

Manager Folsom told police that the robber was first noticed when he walked into the bank and requested information pertaining to travel checks. The man gave a Burlington address.

Stocks Speed On Upturn

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (AP)—Buying of stocks broadened out in afternoon trading today, giving impetus to the market's creeping advance.

Near the closing hour, many issues were up fractions to more than $2 a share, some to new peaks for the year. Demand centered on industrials but rails also did better after the weekly carloadings report disclosed a moderate gain.

Transactions picked up on the rise.
